

Aristeides Chatzistavrou

Born and raised in Piraeus, with roots from Asia Minor. He decided at a very young age that the 6 strings of the guitar would become his ticket to see Greece and the rest of the world. Having already entered the realms of composing, teaching and performing, in 1992 he earns his classical guitar diploma under Iakovos Kolanian, winning a performance award.

His musical activities include recitals, collaborations with symphonic orchestras and chamber music ensembles, both in Greece and abroad. With a prolific recording career, he has been a founder and member of famous Greek bands such as “Omadiki Apodراسi” , “Theros” , “Tangarto” and “Duo Arioso” .

During his studies of electric and acoustic guitar, lute and various other plucking instruments he discovered and was influenced by both oriental and western music.

His everyday life includes concerts, recordings, orchestrations, writing songs, lyrics or compositions for orchestra, as well as teaching guitar students, practicing and endless travelling.
